

LINDBERGH SITUATION NOW TENSE

Police Bulletin Appears 90
Minutes Late; No News
Disclosed However
RUMORS ARE HEARD
Fisherman Reports Seeing Woman With Buggy

TRENTON, N. Y. April 7.—An atmosphere of tense expectancy due to rumors that important developments were pending in the Lindbergh baby kidnapping prevailed at the New Jersey state police headquarters here today.

This tension was heightened when the official "New Bulletin" issued by Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the state police, did not make its appearance until 11:30 a. m. an hour and one half after the customary time.

However the statement had nothing in it regarding any significant development of the past 24 hours. Whether or not Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh is in contact with the kidnapers of his son, was not discussed.

TRENTON, N. J., April 7.—Hope for the quick return of the kidnapped Lindbergh baby was kept high today by several new developments.

Foremost was the assurance given by John H. Curtis, Norfolk, Va., he had established contact with the kidnapers and that the baby was well.

The coastal zone of Vineyard Sound, in Massachusetts, where persistent reports state the baby may be held captive on a boat and which was twice visited by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife, was the focal point of the hunt for the baby.

SEE BABY DUGGY
Latest of the developments was the search continued today by police on the shores of Falmouth Harbor, Wild Harbor and Mashpee for a couple seen wheeling a baby carriage across Waquoit beach and into the woods.

The man and woman now sought apparently came ashore from a boat.

The beach is opposite Martha's Vineyard, twice visited by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh in air flights in the past few days and scene of great activity by his envoys and coast guard vessels.

The place is unfrequented, and the story told by Jonathan Jones, fisherman, of seeing the tracks made by the rubber tires of the baby carriage and superimposed on them footprints of a man and woman incited an immediate investigation.

Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, in charge of the New Jersey state police, declared in a bulletin he received no information from Massachusetts authorities concerning "a man, woman and baby supposed to have left a small yacht at South Mashpee, Mass."

GOVERNOR CONFIDENT
Governor A. Harry Moore injected a confident note into the case when, after receiving reports on the progress of the kidnapping investigation from Schwarzkopf whom he called into conference, he announced:

"Colonel Schwarzkopf conferred with me and reported in detail on the general situation including police activities and progress. He told me the situation remains about the same as it has been for several days.

"It is my sincere hope that the baby is alive and well. That he is alive and well is also my sincere belief.

"However, I have no definite knowledge that he is."

More positive, however, was the statement of Curtis, who with Rear Admiral Guy H. Burgess and the Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, compose the so-called Norfolk group of Lindbergh emissaries.

"I made contact with the person I want to see regarding the kidnapped son of Colonel Lindbergh and was informed the child was well.

Within four days after the alleged bandit raided the bank and herded six employees into a vault while he made a get-away, the jury indicted him on charges which will send him to the Ohio penitentiary for life if he is convicted.

Arrested at Washington C. H., Saturday night, a few hours after the robbery, Smith denied being guilty, but police said they found more than $8,000 in a suitcase, he carried, and victimized bankers said he was undoubtedly the robber.

LACK EYEWITNESS IN HAWAIIAN CASE
HONOLULU, T. H., April 7.—Probable inability of the prosecution to produce an eyewitness to the "Honor Slaying" of Joseph Kahahawai may prove an important point in the defense of the four Americans on trial here for his killing.

This possibility was indicated today as the "home stretch" stage was reached in the task of selecting a jury that will determine the fate of Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, American society matron, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., and two enlisted men of the United States navy, charged with second degree murder.

Three days of questioning of witnesses have served to reveal glimpses of carefully guarded plans of both prosecution and defense.

The state women's committee on the Girls' Industrial school, composed of representatives of leading women's organizations, severely criticized the state administration for the appointment of Mrs. Dell Howell of Zanesville as superintendent of education, a position created a week ago.

Members of the committee emphatically disapproved the policy of using welfare institutions in the state for political purposes, and charged that the Delaware school is constantly used for political purposes.

FRANKHAWKS BADLY HURT IN CRACKUP

Famous Aviator Rushed to Hospital in Worchester,
Mass., Thursday
PLANE IS WRECKED

Wife to Leave From Fort Worth for East

GRAFTON, Mass., April 7.—Captain Frank N. Hawks, famous speed flyer, was seriously injured today when his airplane, taking off on the muddy field here, cracked up.

The plane was going at the rate of about 100 miles an hour and was just leaving the ground. For some unknown reason, it refused to take off, and struck the ground several times.

THROWN FROM PLANE
Hawks was thrown from the plane when his safety strap was snapped. He rolled over and over on the field. The plane, bounding after him, pinned him beneath it.

Officials of the flying field, and members of the reception committee who had come to the airport to see him off, rushed to the wrecked plane with fire extinguishers prepared to put out a fire. Hawks, however, apparently had seen he was going to crash and had cut the ignition switch of the motor.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL
The rescuers pulled away the wreckage of the plane, extricated Hawks and rushed him to Memorial hospital in Worcester.

The muddy condition of the field was blamed by airport officials as the cause of the accident.

When Hawks arrived here yesterday after a fast flight from New York, the wheels of his Lockheed Vega monoplane sank into the mud. His plane was undamaged, however, and Hawks expressed the hope the field would be in better condition for his take-off today.

An escort plane, piloted by John Whittenasell, which landed after Hawks, stuck in the mud as it slowed down, and turned up on its nose. The pilot, thrown from the cockpit, was uninjured, and the plane was only slightly damaged.

WIFE TO LEAVE FROM

HOOPER'S FORCES LEAD IN WISCONSIN
MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 7.—Conservative Republicans, favoring re-nomination of President Hoover, clung to their lead over La Follette progressives today as counting of ballots in Tuesday's primaries approached completion.

In the Democratic primary Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, emerged overwhelmingly victorious. Returns from 2,076 of the state's 2,445 precincts assured the Roosevelt forces of 25 out of the 28 delegates to the Democratic convention at Chicago.

The uninstructed slate of delegates, regarded as favorable to Alfie E. Smith's presidential candidacy, failed to win a single convention seat.

Justice Has Been Rewarded

LESS than four months after the atrocious crime of murdering an aged, defenseless farmer had been committed, each of the six culprits who participated in the crime have been captured, convicted and sentenced.

Four of these men have been found guilty of murder in the first degree without mercy and are in death row at the Ohio Penitentiary, while two have been granted mercy after being found guilty and will spend the rest of their lives behind the prison walls.

N O worse crime has even been committed in Pickaway-co than the murder of John Kidney and the brutal treatment of his invalid sister, Sarah Kidney. This was done at their home on the morning of Dec. 10, 1931, by persons in the act of burglary.

It was many hours after the crime was committed before its discovery and authorities notified. There was no evidence to assist in apprehending the murderers. But, through the diligent work of Sheriff Charles Radcliff and his assistants with the co-operation of Franklin-co authorities all of the criminals were arrested and safely confined in the county jail here.

Then the wheels of justice were started to roll. The men were charged with the crime, counsel appointed to defend and prosecute them and trial dates set.

Prosecutor Crist and his assistants vigorously asked that each man be given the mercy that he had shown these aged people on the morning of Dec. 10.

Just such mercy was shown in four of the trials. THE verdict of the jurors and Judge Adkins met with the general approval of the citizens of the community. They demonstrated that the law, if given a chance, is capable of coping with crime. Each jury was composed of competent, clear thinking men and women who had the courage of their convictions according to law in meting out just punishment.

With such names being placed in the jury box by the jury commission, as composed these juries, Pickaway-co can always be sure of having capable juries.

W ITH such men as Judge Adkins, Prosecuting Attorney Crist and Sheriff Radcliff to watch over the people of the county, and to see that the offenders of the law are given their just punishment, the citizens of the county can be certain of having placed this important part of the government in competent hands.

It has been a hard job well done.

Herald Thanked By Prosecutor

Emmitt L. Crist, prosecuting attorney, Thursday publicly thanked The Herald for its co-operation during the six murder trials just ended.

Mr. Crist's communication follows:

"I desire to express my appreciation to your newspaper for the fine way you considered law enforcement officials of Pickaway-co in six murder trials just completed. I am personally very grateful for the due consideration given by your newspaper to these cases; especially as many times during the course of the pursuit and capture of the criminals involved, information was in your hands, which, if printed, would have hindered our chances in capturing and convicting the guilty parties. Too many times we see justice impeded by the over-zealous acts and craving of certain newspapers for sensational news.

"I feel that I express the sentiments of Joseph W. Adkins, judge of the Common Pleas court, and of Charles Radcliff, sheriff, and his deputies.

"Thanking you again for your co-operation in the Kidney murder cases, I am, 'Very truly yours,' 'Emmitt L. Crist, 'Prosecuting Attorney, 'Pickaway County, Ohio.'"

HAIRSTON, SATISFIED, SENTENCED

Negro Waives Right to Move for New Trial;
Pleased With Verdict
THANKS THE COURT
State's Witness to Join
Others in Big House

Waiving the right to have his attorney file a motion for a new trial, John 'Dumpy' Hairston, 27, was sentenced to the Ohio penitentiary for the remainder of his life Wednesday by Judge Joseph W. Adkins.

Hairston, who turned state's witness, was found guilty of murder in the first degree with a recommendation for mercy by the court in a decision Tuesday. Judge Adkins heard testimony in Hairston's case without a jury.

The colored youth, satisfied to have escaped the electric chair which is now beckoning four of his partners in crime, made a statement to Judge Adkins before sentence was passed. "I want to thank my attorney and the judge for granting me mercy and I want to thank the court in general. I know I should be punished for what I have done and I am willing to take my share of the punishment. That's all I have to say to the court."

FILES NO MOTION
Former Judge Charles Dresbach who represented Hairston said that he would waive the right to file a motion for a new trial and that he wished to request the court to instruct Warden Preston Thomas of Ohio penitentiary to give Hairston some sort of position within the walls of the institution according to his behavior and demeanor.

Judge Adkins told Hairston the reasons he had passed the life imprisonment sentence on him, recalling the value of the negro as a witness for the state against the other five defendants in the brutal murder of John Kidney. He instructed Hairston that much depends upon his behavior within the penitentiary in regards to the future, explaining to him that there was a possibility of the governor of the state commuting his sentence.

TO JOIN OTHERS
Hairston, when taken to the penitentiary after Prosecuting Attorney E. L. Crist returns from a business trip to Washington, D. C., will join Franklin Smith, also sentenced to life. Four others against whom Hairston testified in the murder of Mr. Kidney are awaiting execution.

Walker Brown, 24, colored, convicted as the actual murderer, and Henry Loudmilk, 47, white, the mastermind behind the conspiracy to burglarize the Kidney home, are to die June 3; Lacey Adams, 38, colored, is to be executed June 10, and Arthur Little, 39, colored, captured in Mt. Gilboa, N. C., after evading justice for almost three months, is to die July 22 for his part in the crime.

FURTHER RADIUM DEATHS
May Follow Millionaire's

Eben Byers, Killed by Radium Water, Had Recommended It to Many Friends. Fatalities Among Women Radium Workers Recalled.

Disclosures which followed the death of Eben M. Byers, millionaire steel manufacturer of Pittsburgh, revealed Byers had recommended the radium preparation, which eventually killed him, to many of his friends. It is feared that if they had as much faith in the deadly preparation as Byers had, many are now beyond hope and must eventually suffer a similar fate to that of the millionaire. The death of Byers recalls the terrible series of fatalities that occurred among women employees of the U. S. Radium Corporation, at Orange, N. J., a few years ago, causing a national sensation. A large number of women contracted the same disease that killed Byers through their practice of painting the brushes, with which they applied radium paint to watch dials, with their tongues. By 1930, eighteen women had died of the malady and sixteen more were doomed—many have since died. Four of the victims are shown above. They are Katherine Scheub, Grace Fryer, Mrs. Guinda McDonald and Mrs. Ethelwynne Mertz. In the case of Mrs. Mertz it was claimed that her son, Edward, also contracted the dread malady through pre-natal influence. Science is powerless to do anything for an afflicted person once the malady takes a firm hold. The radium continues to bathe at the bone structure of the body until it destroys it.

The eighth grade spent most of Friday morning in taking the state eighth grade tests in Arithmetic, English, Science, and History. By comparing results, we are able to determine however eighth grade ranks with other schools throughout the state.

Edwin Raver entered the fifth grade from Clinton Heights school, Columbus, Ohio.

Mary Margaret Carley will represent the fifth grade in the oral Spelling Contest at Jackson.

The Independent Literary Society will give their last program Thursday afternoon, April 7.

The following students will represent the High School in the written spelling contest at Jackson on April 16: Helen Smith, Judith Schlegel, Edwina Schlegel, Ralph Roby, Edgar Calagan, Arthur Barten and Chester Rockey Jr., attended the Boy Scout Circus in Columbus, Friday night and Saturday.

The Ashville Teachers have been granted Friday afternoon, April 8, to attend the School Men's Conference at Ohio State University.

On March 30, 1932 the Parent Teachers Association gave the Ashville High School football and basketball teams their annual banquet.

At this banquet the following girls and boys received the varsity A for having played in enough quarters to be granted a Varsity letter. Girls: Mary Young, Captain, Judith Schlegel, Tina Kuhlwein, Anna Hay, Martha Roose, Charlotte, Rose, Pauline, Rose, Lila Hiles, Marjorie Hoffman, and Jennette Bowers received a Managers letter while Georgia Bowers received a letter for being cheer leader. Boys: Arch Ward, Captain, Dick Willis, Don Cloud, Maurice Graham, Ralph Berry, Glenn Rihhart, Howard Wellington, Otis Ford, Joe Highley, Guy Cline and Robert Cline received the Managers letter.

The members of the football and teams and their coaches wish to express their thanks and appreciation to the P. T. A. and all those that helped make this banquet a success.

The Ashville High School Operetta "Tulip Time" was very successful and enjoyed by a large crowd. The stage was very pleasing and at this point due credit should be given to Mr. Martin for constructing the setting and to Miss Fosnaugh for decorating it. An operetta is never complete unless there is a good chorus and this group seemed to be full of pep and songs due to the help of Mrs. Morrison who taught the action parts.

Up to this point we have just half of an operetta to make it complete we must have a cast—a cast that fills the exact need which our cast certainly did for "Tulip Time." The Burgomaster, played by Porter Flowers was exceptionally well done. He was able to bring forth several roars from the crowd. This young man has a very good voice and he convinced everyone of this through his solos. The old Aunt played by Georgia Bowers could not have been done better. Here also, is a lovely voice but her part did not allow her to do justice to it. However she did get what she wanted and that was the Professor, or Guy Cline. This dignified character was well distinguished and he might after all become a Professor—who knows? Of course we can not forget the little Dutch boy who was so free to smile at the girls and chew his gum. This lad has great possibilities of becoming a great dancing master—at least he made a good start in High School. All foolishness aside Charles McClellan played his part very well.

The crowd was very pleasantly surprised in one young man who produced a good voice and much dramatic ability this was none other than Orville Ward. With him was another young man who held the audience with his lovely voice—Chester Hedges—who showed great possibilities in his part. These two lads were very fortunate in finding two young ladies who played up to them exceptionally well. Gretchen Plum might easily be taken for a Dutch girl. Here we find a voice that has possibilities along with dramatic ability. Her friend, Alice Bowers, was a surprise to most of us. Alice presented her solos in a lovely and pleasing manner and her part was very well played.

We almost have completed our Operetta but we find two things unmentioned: the costumes for which Mrs. Hedges deserves much credit, and the accompanist, Anna Hay, certainly handled this job exceptionally well. Last of all a crowd helps to put a program of this sort over and we believe Ashville citizens did their part.

Baseball

KING Baseball soon regains his throne to reign for another eight months in renewed splendor. Of all monarchs he alone as the years roll by has none of his traditional public favor. For Americans the year comprises five seasons—baseball, spring, summer, fall and winter—but the greatest of these is the season of baseball. What other season of the year is looked forward to with as much expectation and yearning as that of the Great American Game?

Not all of the one-hundred-and-fifteen millions of men, women and children in this United States are all-year-round or all-season baseball enthusiasts, but there are one who do not realize that the triumph coming of the three great days of the baseball calendar, which are the opening day of the season and the days of the first and last days of the world series? Spring and fall mean little to the baseball fan except they herald the coming of the first game of the season and of the world series, respectively.

There have been some, albeit few, who have depreciated the greatest sport of the Americans. Have they not overlooked the advantages it provides for millions of humans to get out-of-doors for a part, or at least one hour, after noon week, to thrust themselves into an all-diverting amusement, to get together as a great community and with one thought? Have the opponents of baseball overlooked the verity that loyalty and patriotism are general, that loyalty to the home team is made of the same cloth as loyalty to one's town and country?

It is as natural for peoples to have their national pastime as to have their religious, political beliefs, and other national characteristics. Baseball is a distinctive characteristic of the American people.

Britain Balances Budget

ENGLAND, a year ago, faced a huge national deficit and tackled what then seemed to be the impossible, the balancing of her national budget. How well she succeeded is shown by a treasury surplus of $190,000,000 for the last fiscal year.

This remarkable feat in government financing was accomplished through a program of rigid public economy and sound taxation. The government saved more than was expected of it and the new tax schedule produced more than was anticipated. Britannia has good cause for rejoicing. A national crisis has been met and a tax cut is in prospect.

Whether Washington accepts it or not, here is a challenge to America. The United States is now where England stood 12 months ago. Will she be a year from now where England is today. The administration and congress will determine that.

Although the deficit of the United States is several times that of England smothered with a surplus, the task should be less difficult for Washington because the opportunities for economy are greater and the United States has had less than three years of depression England's 14.

Auto Makers Lead

IF business success in 1932 is a matter of enterprise, energy and faith, this should be a banner year for the automobile industry. This industry may not be able, singlehandedly, to bring prosperity back, but if all business would show the same enterprise, energy and faith this year there would be no doubt about the result.

Believing that the way to get factories into operation is to start the wheels turning, that the way to get business is to make something to sell and that the way to get trade is by going after it, the motor car manufacturers are introducing new models, speeding up production, prodding their sales forces and increasing their advertising in one of the greatest business campaigns the country has ever witnessed.

There is little question as to the outcome. Success will crown this business battle of the century, the only uncertain factor being the exact degree to which the nation is ready for another automobile buying spree and only a slight improvement in general business would be sufficient to set it off.

Two men arrested in a dry raid at a library probably were only pouring over the classics.

The GAY BANDIT of the BORDER by TOM GILL

COPYRIGHT 1931 BY INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE CO., INC. DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Bob Harkness, a respected rancher in the Mexican border town of Verdi, is "El Coyote," the masked bandit and bitter enemy of Paco Morales, self-appointed ruler of the border country. "El Coyote's" identity is known only to Ann Reed, an entertainer at a notorious resort. She is in love with him and acts as his spy. "El Coyote" wreaks vengeance on Morales for his unjust treatment of the ranchers. There is a high price on "El Coyote's" head, but all search has proved futile. Bob's foreman and friend, Ted Radcliffe, is in love with Adela, the Spaniard's beautiful niece. Jito, Morales' ward, is jealous of Ted. Major Blount of the U. S. Cavalry summons Bob and Ted to his headquarters to hear one of "El Coyote's" lieutenants reveal his identity. Bob goes outside. Two shots ring out. Bob returns and, shortly after, the informer is carried in, mortally wounded. He dies without a word. On the way home, Bob collapses from a wound in his side. Ted realizes the truth. Bob sends for Ann. Against Bob's wishes, Ted calls in Dr. Price and swears him to secrecy. Under Ann's and Ted's care, Bob recovers. He tells Ted that he became "El Coyote" years ago when Morales tried to ruin him. Morales' gangster Ann and asks her to ascertain "El Coyote's" identity, and also employs her to entangle Ted to wreck his romance with Adela. Adela and Mrs. Blount visit Bob.

CHAPTER XLII

"Bob," asked Adela, "if El Coyote's cause is just, why does he plunder like a bandit?"

"He uses the best tools and methods he finds, like any other wise leader. If the law cannot uphold him in what he does, he must go outside the law. Don't forget that every great revolutionist was first a bandit. It is only when he wins that he becomes patriot and liberator. Here, where Morales is law, every enemy of his becomes an outlaw."

"That means, then, there will be open war?"

Bob nodded silently.

The major's wife was showing signs of impatience. "Nobody asks me for my opinion, and that's a great mistake, for here it is. The trouble with this border country is that it has too many saviors. Off and on, between transfers, I've been here thirty-five years. I know I don't look that old, thank you all very much. Well, every year I've spent here has been oversupplied with saviors of one kind or another. Morales thinks he's one; the government thinks it's one; perhaps El Coyote does. What they need, these people, is to be left alone. Give them peace from ideas. Drop it all! Let them cultivate their lands, herd their animals, and have their babies, although God knows they do very well in that last matter. But let them alone."

Bob smiled. "Dear lady, I think that is exactly what El Coyote would like to do—to see them left alone."

"But if he breaks Morales' power, will he let them alone, or will it be just an exchange of slave drivers?"

"I think in that event El Coyote would be well content to disappear."

"You're so conversant with his plans, if you weren't so lazy, I'd suspect you of being El Coyote."

Bob's amused eyes never changed. "I wonder just what kind of bad man I'd make. First of all I'd kidnap the major and hold him for ransom."

Aunt Clara gave her baritone chuckle. "Who do you think would ransom him? Me—after the atrocious bridge that man has foisted on me for thirty years? You tell your kidnapping band to come over any time. Bob, I'll leave the door unlocked. I'll even have the major's bag packed."

Bob looked at Adela. "This, young lady, should be a warning and a lesson. See to what depths the high passion of young love must come at last."

Adela smiled. "I'm terribly frightened, but I know that if anyone threatened the major, Aunt Clara would be the first to scratch."

"Hear, hear," applauded that lady, in high derision.

Bob's eyes softened, "I'm just wondering," he told her, "what I wouldn't give to be just your age and have the dreams your years give, and perhaps to know again what love is like."

Aunt Clara dropped her cigarette. "That settles it. We've got to go before he sets it to music. Love and dreams and everything. I can stand cavalry profanity and modernistic painting, but middle-aged poetry—She rose and dusted the ash from her dress. "Adela, come out of this influence."

Adela laid her hand against the rancher's cheek. "Get well, soon, old friend, and I'll tell you another story—perhaps a love story. And I'll leave you to find for me the happy ending."

"There'll be a happy ending, somehow. Never doubt it, Adela mia."

But before that night was over, the hope of any happy ending was farther away than ever before.

For it was on that evening Bob had sent Ted over to Mendoza's to bring Ann Reed out to the hacienda. "Ann has some information," he told Ted. "She won't trust it even to Manuel. I've sent word that you would come for her."

In the little roadster Ted came for her just before sunset. As he circled the driveway at Mendoza's a Mexican stood eagerly watching from among the palms in the patio. He waited in patient immobility among the shadows until Ted and the girl entered the roadster, then he drove rapidly out toward the hacienda of Paco Morales.

Not until she was seated on Bob's porch and the cigarettes lighted did the girl begin. Then, as she sat there smoking, Ann told them of the visit of Morales and of his seeking for information of El Coyote. Through it all Bob smiled silently.

"I think the old devil suspects," Bob said at last. "Well, unless he moves quickly, his suspicions won't help him. Manuel and I are laying plans of our own. What else is new, little oracle of the border?"

She turned toward Radcliffe. "There was something I learned that may interest you. You know, they talk much of you over at Mendoza's. They talk of your strength and of the time you threw Jito, and always they talk as if sometime you and he are bound to fight again. One night there was a man, a lawyer, over from Sonora. He sat with two others at our table, and for a time Mendoza was with him. When they spoke your name this man from Sonora remembered something about you. I made him talk—it's never very hard to make you men talk. He told me that some years ago a piece of land had been transferred from father to son, and the records of it were entered with his law firm. He said that the land was in your name."

Bob leaned forward. "What did he call the land?"

"He called it the Esperanza property."

"Esperanza?" Bob's gray eyes sparkled. "Good Lord, that holds two of the best waterholes in this part of the country. He drummed with his fingers on the porch rail. "It would be too good," he murmured.

Ted's own eyes were bright with excitement. "That was the name," he cried. "That was the name dad used the last night we talked. But how would it get transferred to me?"

"I can only guess," Bob replied. "Your father must have transferred it before the crash came. He must have bought that tract when he was laying plans to irrigate the valley, and Morales never knew. That's the best of it. Morales, of course, thought it went up in smoke with the rest of those concessions. Won't that old octopus squirm when he learns that one hundred thousand acres of the best range land he has been using belongs to you!"

"But I still don't understand. Why couldn't anyone have bought it? Why did Morales take the chance of losing it?"

"No one could have bought it, because it wasn't for open sale. To get it you had to have first a concession from the government. Your father got that concession long ago with Morales' influence when they were partners. But neither Morales nor I knew he actually bought any land. Then, through Morales' treachery, your father lost those concessions, but in between he must have made fast to that one tract of land, the Esperanza. Meanwhile, Morales has gone on using it, as he uses dozens of others, preferring that it remain the property of the Mexican government and without expense to him."

Suddenly he stopped. "That is, of course, if it's all true. Who told you this?"

"I can't remember. He wrote his name and the law firm down for me. I have his card in my room."

Ted looked at his friend. "This means as soon as you're better I leave for Sonora. If that land is really mine, I'm going to start a little squeezing on my own side of the line. Morales will find he's got a new neighbor."

But Don Bob had already risen in his chair. "If the tale's true it will be a bad blow for Morales' dream of empire. Oh, it's too good to wait for! Let's ride over with Ann. I want to see that name. Then I can do some telegraphing to an amigo in Sonora. He'll tell us quick enough."

The girl looked at him in quick concern. "Are you able to drive to Mendoza's?"

Bob's voice was confident. "Dear girl, I've recovered. You've been the best little doctor in the world."

He went inside, strapped on his shoulder holster, and led them down the steps. In the darkness as they drove up at Mendoza's none noticed the long limousine parked in the shadow of the patio. Before they reached the door Bob stopped.

"Ann better not be seen with me. You two go in ahead. I'll take a table and Ted can get that card from you and join me."

She led Radcliffe down the long, darkened hall, and throwing open the door of her room, turned on the light. "Sit down a moment," she said, and, closing the door, stepped behind the tapestry that hung before her small dressing-room. In a moment she had returned with a card, but as the man rose to go she shook her head. "I've got to sing soon, but I want to talk to you now for five minutes while you're here alone. It's about you."

She reached for the spangled dress and a pair of stockings, then disappeared behind the tapestry, and Ted heard her kicking off her shoes.

"I wanted to warn you that you're in danger—very real danger," came the voice. "Morales suspects you are in love with his niece. He's afraid she is beginning to love you."

"How do you know?"

For a moment he heard only the soft rustle of silk, then she answered: "Morales himself. Two days ago he came here. He offered me money to entangle you, so that she would hate you. I agreed because so long as he hopes this plan may succeed you will come to no harm. After that, I'm afraid to think. We mustn't worry Bob, but we've got to—"

Early Care May Cure Cancer

Science Can Now Cope With Disease If First Warning Signals Are Speedily Heeded.

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.
U. S. Senator from New York.
former Commissioner of Health,
New York City.

A QUARTER of a century ago, cancer was considered a hopeless disease. I am glad to say that this is not the attitude of doctors today. Extensive study and research have made possible the early recognition of cancer, and when it is recognized early, many cases which heretofore were considered fatal are cured.

The cause of cancer is one of the mysteries of medicine, yet tremendous strides have been made in the treatment of this terrifying disease.

Since the cause is not known and prevention is not possible, cancer is fatal when overlooked or neglected, for when cancer is left to itself the "hopeless" stage of treatment is soon reached. Then it is too late to apply modern knowledge to its removal, but if early treatment is given the hope of recovery is very bright.

Regardless of age and condition of health, it is necessary for everyone to heed the first warnings. Too often the importance of the early symptoms is overlooked and resort is had to home remedies. It is strange that while most persons will seek the advice of a physician if they have pain around the heart, the same individuals will neglect stomach disturbances and attribute them to indigestion. Too many succumb to cancer of the stomach or intestines because they ignore the first warnings.

Please bear in mind that persistent and recurrent indigestion requires more than a home remedy. Often a simple X-ray picture will reveal an unsuspected cancer. When recognized early, before the growth spreads, the diseased tissues can be completely and safely removed.

Cancer is rare in children. When malignant disease is found in youth it is usually sarcoma—a rare form of cancer—and I am sorry to say that most of these pathetic cases are usually recognized too late. I parents would always remember that any persistent lump a child has may be the early stage of a malignant trouble, the disease would be taken care of at a stage when there is every prospect of cure.

If a child complains of pain or soreness of a joint or bone the family doctor should be consulted. Remember that there is no such thing as growing pains, and the ailment may be rheumatism.

Whenever you are in doubt, consult with a doctor. No better health investment can be made than that of prompt examination when pain is present. Periodic health examinations of every adult should be made regardless of the state of health.

No one need fear cancer. It need cause no worry if it is not neglected, but it is only by early recognition and early treatment that this disease can be controlled. It is hoped that soon a prevention for this disease will be discovered.

Theatres

AT THE GRAND

Loretta Young, beautiful young screen favorite who scored so heavily recently in "Taxi" and "The Hatchet Man," will arrive at the Grand Theatre Thursday in her latest and most important picture, "Play Girl," a Warner Bros. and Vitaphone production.

Miss Young has brought to a part packed with romance, pathos and spirited comedy, a sincerity and understanding which makes it the outstanding triumph of her career.

Norman Foster, as the young lover and husband—a lovable, gambling ne'er-do-well—carries the role opposite Miss Young to the story's happily ending. He again demonstrates the superb technique evident in his other successes, "Under Eighteen" and "Alias the Doctor."

AT THE CLIFTONA

"The Passionate Plumber" brings a group of funsters to the Cliftona Theatre in what is said to be the spiciest and most amusing comedy yet turned out by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

Buster Keaton has the title role and further hilarity is guaranteed by the presence in leading roles of the inimitable Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante in a characterization reported to be even funnier than that of his "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" and the riotous Polly Moran as his consort.

That the impression is growing stronger and stronger that world trade is definitely on the mend and that the present year will see the birth of a new era of prosperity.

In the case of the convalescence of some cities, however, the recovery is likely to be a protracted business, but it will be none the less certain.

What should be done now is to encourage these patients and induce them to see things in a more favorable perspective.
In this connection, not only the business concerns but the cities as well should take the initiative by launching on an ambitious scale a newspaper advertising campaign, which cannot fail to bring beneficial results in its train.
All business concerns are in need of new business and that business can be attracted best by newspaper advertising.
Give but little advice and applaud frequently if you would be popular.

Gordon was rushed into solitary confinement. The other prisoners went ahead with their exercising.

PICKAWAY SCHOOLS

Our operetta, "The Pirate's Daughter," will be given Friday night, April 15th. The ticket board will be open at noon Wednesday, April 13. All seats reserved. Admission 25c. If you can not come at noon Wednesday, give your order to one of the students. Telephone orders will be taken at any time after the initial sale.

Our school will be closed Friday so that the teachers may have an opportunity to get the instruction and inspiration of the Ohio State University Educational Conference. They will bring back this instruction and inspiration, and an improved school will be the result. The school and community will profit more than they would by the regular school session.

Mrs. O. C. Meyer is substituting for Mr. Althaus in our Commercial Department during his illness, which may keep him out the remainder of the year.

All of our spelling teams have been chosen except the 718 teams, and they will be chosen by the time this message reaches our readers. Next week we shall give the names of the pupils who are on the various teams.

The state eighth grade examination was given last Friday. Out of a possible 200 points, the following were in the upper 25 percent:

Rosemary Brown 170
Virginia Preisbach 151
Paul McKenize 150
Lynn Cooper 146
Betty French 141
Lillian 128.

The seniors have chosen "The Go-Getter" for their class play. Miss Frann will direct the production.

Rev. C. H. Eichinger was the speaker for the special tree-planting program at Pickaway school Friday at one o'clock. The program and the planting were arranged by Mr. Meyer representing the high school and Mrs. Johnson representing the elementary school. Through special arrangement with the state archaeological society an offspring of our own famous Logan Elm was planted with appropriate ceremonies and dedicated to the memory of George Washington.

All of the pupils and teachers formed in ranks eight abreast north of the building promptly at one o'clock and marched to the designated place led by our own Logan Elm Girl Scout troop carrying the flag. A rectangle was formed by the girl scouts on the west by pupils and teachers on the north and south, by the speakers on the east and all stood at attention while they sang America.

This was followed by the invocation. Supt. Seitz then presented the tree to the school and community, and it was accepted for the board of education by Shirley Dresbach, president, Joyce Kilmer's "Trees" was then sung by an octet of teachers, and this was followed by Rev. Eichinger's excellent address, which was well received and attentively listened to in spite of a raw wind and the absence of the sun, which at that time was shut out by a dense blanket of clouds.

The entire ceremony was very impressive and will live long in the memories of those who were present. The tree, we hope will emulate the example of its parent and stand for many years as a reminder to this and coming generations of the noble Logan and the great Washington.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

A widely known writer once said "It's more profitable to build boys than to mend men." Whether or not this man was thinking of Boy Scouts when he wrote those words, he was in the minds of the World today. The boys of today will be men of tomorrow and the better the boy the better the man.

No organization in America for the building of better boys holds a higher rank than The Boy Scouts. Founded on principles of unqualified soundness and supported by the country's leaders, this organization has done more for the development of youth in patriotism and honesty than any other in the world. We do not say that the public schools, the Church and Sunday School have not done their part for the boy, but there are certain hours of a boy's time in which he must amuse himself without the guidance of the school and church—these are the dangerous hours and here is where the Boy Scout organization fits in. With further guidance, yes—with just the kind of recreation the boy is seeking.

Circleville people for the past year have seen what can be accomplished by her boys who have taken up Scouting. None question the benefits of the boys both physically and morally nor does one doubt that the community has benefited from the training given her boys through the Scouts.

Scoutmaster and business men who have given money as well as valuable time to the support of the Circleville Scout Troop are now faced with the problem of raising $1,000.00 with which to carry on their work for another year. How much of a problem this will be depends entirely on the people of Circleville. This sum of money may look large but when it is compared to the good that is derived from it, it is negligible. Circleville will be paid back many times the sum she invests in her boys.

When we are approached within the next few days by a solicitor for the Boy Scouts, just remember that "it is more profitable to build boys than to mend men," and that the boys of today will be the men of tomorrow.

After all is said and done, there's only one thing that is responsible for the growth or decline of any community.

That is the spirit of the people. If the people are discouraged, blue, disheartened, pessimistic, growling, snarling, kicking complaining whining, and weeping, the community is on the toboggan and sliding backward.

If the people can smile through their tears, show their spunk, keep peering away, keep cheerful, live within their means, appreciate one another, consider the future, have hope for better times, determine to "see it through," at any cost, that town is on the upgrade, and will get somewhere.

Two men looked at a worn-out farm. One man turned away, said it was hopeless. The other man said he'd try it. He bought it for a song, and everybody called him a fool. He smiled and began studying soil culture. He read everything he could find on soil building. He came to be known as an expert on soils. He put his theories into practice, building back into his farm the fertility that had been taken from it. The result, now he has a farm that is the envy of the community.

What wrought the change? It was the spirit of the man. It was his determination that turned the trick.

Emerson said: "What a new face courage puts on everything. A determined man, by his attitude and the tone of his voice, puts a stop to defeat and begins to conquer."

It's the spirit that counts.

HELLO NEIGHBOR

You never realize how much that simple, staunch greeting you hear so often means unless you go away and hear it not at all—"Hello, Neighbor" you hear it on your way to work. It starts the day off right, gives you confidence, sends you forth with added zest, with fresh courage and a determination to repair worth.

"Hello, Neighbor"—you hear it when you go to lunch. Somehow it makes the food taste better, makes you forget your worries, makes you spend with a glow of inward satisfaction.

"Hello, Neighbor"—you're greeted on your journey homeward.

And all the rancor leaves you, you catch that sense of well-being, your troubles and perplexities leave you, life seems truly sweet.

It is strange how these two simple words can mean so much. However, they do. They contain the very essence of friendship, itself. When they are spoken to you they really come from the bottom of someone's heart. They are more than a greeting, they say, "We hope you are well and that everything is going along swimmingly and that it's a fine world if you just understand and make the most of it." The pleasure of hearing these two words, expressed gives everything a brighter hue and the somber thought which tenaciously abide with us are evaporated in the greeting, "Hello, Neighbor."

9,000 TO GET JOBS IN HIGHWAY LETTING

COLUMBUS, O., April 7.—Nine thousand idle Ohio men will be given jobs within the next three weeks with the launching of Ohio's 1932 road building program, the state highway department announced today.

The weatherman has fired a telling shot at unemployment and contractors throughout the state are beginning work this week on $2,500,000 worth of projects awarded since Jan. 1, according to engineers' reports received by Highway Director O. W. Merrell.

TO PROVIDE LABOR

A 3,412,053 letting scheduled for April 15 will provide work for many hundreds of others and will start the construction machinery moving full speed.

A highly important effort toward chasing the wolf from the door in the suffering counties, the 9,000 jobs or the most part will be assigned to men with families who have long been without work.

Contractors are required to select 60 per cent of their laborers from a list of needy submitted to them by county relief committees.

Under a minimum wage agreement between the highway department and contractors, the laborers will receive from 35 to 50 cents an hour. Highway officials estimate that 85 per cent of the approximately $6,000,000 worth of work to be let by April 15 will be paid out to laborers in pay envelopes.

Due to the general need of work, highway heads have tried to distribute the important projects into all parts of the state, they said.

Illustrating, they declared the biggest projects where work is now starting are located as follows:

Newark-Coshocton road in Muskingum-co, Hamilton-Eaton road in Preble-co, Mansfield-Ashland road in Ashland-co, St. Marys-Fort Wayne road in Auglaize-co, Toledo- Angola road in Fulton-co, Lancaster-New Lexington road in Perry-co, Sidney-Vasailles road in Shelby-co and the National road in eastern Ohio.

COSTS TO VARY

Costs of the leading projects vary from $55,000 to $203,229. On each of these at least 100 men will be employed and the total engaged in some projects will reach 300 or 400.

Opening up of the general construction program will be the biggest contribution to the unemployment campaign made by the highway department. Eight thousand men are now at work in ditch widening and 2500 are employed in the bridge program started by Governor George White, but those at work in the regular building program will, at the height of the year, reach many more.

REDUCES IN JAIL

FRESNO, Cal.—R. F. McMahon, 32, says the Fresno county jail is a fine place for anyone desiring to get rid of surplus fat. He lost 20 pounds while serving a 30-day sentence.

Any member of the family of Porter Martin, R. F. D. 4, Circleville, is invited to be a guest of The Herald to the Grand Theatre. Call at this office for ticket.

The P. T. A. meeting will be Friday, April 8. The program will be in charge of Miss Knapp's physical education department and the vocational department under Mr. Bowne. Everybody welcome.

As Friday was Arbor Day a 45 minute program was given in the auditorium by the biology class of V. L. Dechrosh and the seniors under the direction of R. S. Drum. The program was opened by the audience singing, "Welcome, Sweet Springtime." An oration, "Springtime," by Alice Fausnaugh was next. Katherine Huffer gave a recitation, "The Voice of Spring." William Cook played a solo on his clarinet. The next event on the program was a hilarious pantomime given by the seniors. Those who took part were Mary Louise Kuhn, Jenny Horton, George Huber and Glenn Kiger. The closing numbers were a recitation, "Apple blossoms," by Mary Florence Litten and comics by William Cook and Theodore Cline.

Monday evening, March 28, the advanced class in Home Economics under the instruction of Mrs. B. W. Harper gave a dinner for the Walnut-twp and Madison-twp boards of education. The dinner consisted of the following: Apricot and cherry cocktails, cured ham croquettes, scalloped potatoes, creamed celery, hot Cloverleaf rolls, butter, cabbage-nut salad, fruit jello with whipped cream, hickory nut cake, coffee.

Dinner was served at 7 to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. William Duvall, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Noecker, and Cyrus Dunn of Madison-twp; Mr. and Mrs. Homer Reber, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Hanover, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Barr, Frank Hinson and Russell Balthaser of Walnut-twp; R. H. Sponser and Superintendent D. L. Buchanan of Circleville. The tables were simply decorated with snapdragons and candles. The music was furnished by a radio.

The seniors seem to be masters in the inter-class baseball contests played at the noon hour by high school.

A Mother May See Her Son Inaugurated U.S. President

For Second Time in United States History, a Mother May See Dream Realized—Her Son a President.

GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT and MOTHER.

With Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, and Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, well in the running for the Democratic Presidential nomination, it is well within the bounds of possibility that the mother of one of these candidates will have the great American ambition realized—that she'll see her boy raised to the greatest honor the nation can bestow. Mrs. Sarah J. Garner, mother of the Speaker, is frank about her hopes. From her home in Detroit, Texas, the aged woman recently addressed a letter to her son's supporters in the State of Georgia, thanking them for their faith in her boy and confessing that the hope of her declining years is to see him President of "the grandest nation the world has ever known." Though Mrs. Garner is past her 80th year she is hale and hearty. Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, mother of New York's Governor, has similar ambitions for her son. Between the Roosevelts, mother and son, exists a strong bond of affection, an example of which was shown last year when the Governor, on receipt of the news that his mother was desperately ill in France, placed the helm of state in the hands of his Lieutenant Governor and hurried to Europe to be with his mother in her hour of need. Should it come to pass that Mrs. Garner or Mrs. Roosevelt see the ambition of that a mother has seen her son so honored. The other instance was that of President Garfield, whose first act after he had been sworn into office was to turn and kiss his aged mother, who had sat on the platform while he made his inauguration address, in 1881. That act of President Garfield's was the one incident of the inauguration that forever lingered in the memories of all who saw it.

Chillicothe were guests Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Lucy Honnold, of Pickaway-twp.

Mrs. Ralph McQuade is spending the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Erick of Lancaster.

Miss Nola Klingler of Junction City is the week-end guests of Mrs. Gladys Peters, E. Main-st.

Miss Virginia Marion and Miss Ada Burgett will spend the week-end in Columbus.

Miss Iola Wentworth returned to her home on W. Union-st., Wednesday, after spending several days with Miss Elizabeth Spurgeon in Columbus.

Richard Nickerson, Case School of Technology at Cleveland arrived Wednesday for a visit during spring vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Nickerson, S. Court-st.

NEW STEAMSHIP SERVICE PHILADELPHIA—Direct steamship contact has been made between Florida growers of citrus fruits and Philadelphia for the first time in the history of the Port of Philadelphia. The first ship to come through in inaugurating the service was the "Elmer Bolling," a unit in Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's recent Antarctic expedition.

SANS NERVES, MAN WOULD BE IMMORTAL

PARIS—If man possessed no brains and no nervous system he might be immortal. This is the belief of the French doctor, J. Carrell. Twenty years ago, Dr. Carrell removed a piece of tissue from the heart of a chicken and preserved it in a tube. Today this tissue is still alive. By his experiments he has found that the only living cells incapable of preservation are those of the brain system.

MINISTERS OVERWORKED SPRINGFIELD, Mo.—Because an early settler who died about 100 year ago was buried on Sunday, citizens of Springfield have clung to Sabbath funerals as an established custom and tradition. Large Audience Grets Production Of Little Theatre; Is Again Tonight

Wit and humor marked the fourth production of the Theatrical Little Theater presented Wednesday evening at the high school auditorium. The play, "I'll Explain Everything," a three act domestic comedy by Clark Willard was given before a large and responsive audience.

The plot deals with a small town banker, Henry Becker, who goes to Chicago to establish a loan with the great Montgomery Walsh, president of the Federal Trust Co. While in the city Becker is seen by Walsh in one of the city's most notorious cafes with a strange woman, whom Becker says is his wife. In order to establish his faith in Becker, Walsh, six months later, calls at Becker's home and as a result many lies are told by Becker and his friend and advisor, Valentine Scott, to clear himself for the first one told, which only thickens the plot and makes it most interesting.

PLOT CATCHY

Gertrude Becker, the wife of Henry, his cousin, Ada Becker and brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. James Darby, and Walter Dow, finance of Ada Becker, who do not understand the entanglement Mr. Becker is in make it most difficult for him and constantly demand an explanation for his false introductions and strange actions. Dr. Blair makes circumstances much worse, when she is called to the home to treat Mr. Becker, who is supposed to be suffering from eye trouble. Everything is finally explained when the girl from Chicago, Cary, Carroll, arrives at the Becker home.

The lines were catchy and throughout the play the audience was kept in continuous laughter by the witty and clever remarks of Henry Becker, his wife, and Valentine Scott.

Particular mention should be made of Pat Kirwin as Henry Becker and Ellen Bennett as his wife, who received the greatest number of votes from the audience, for the best portrayal of character. Ned Thatcher as Becker's friend and advisor was well cast and deserves high mention.

ALL PLAY WELL

Lincoln Mader as Montgomery Walsh, Porter Stout as Walter Dow and William Barthelmas as

James Darby, the Englishman, carried off their roles very capably and Florence Camp as Ada Becker, Rosemary Jackson as Jean Darby, Jane Hitler as the doctor and Mildred Rummel, the girl from Chicago gave excellent interpretations of their parts.

Special features between acts included Marvene Wallace, Betty Cooper, Gaylord Rose, the Hilo Hiawians, and the high school orchestra.

The play under the capable direction of J. W. Fetherlin will be presented again this evening at the school by a different cast. Those to take part in Thursday night's presentation are: David Buchanan, Henry Becker, Gaylord Rose, Valentine Scott; Robert Wilson, Montgomery Walsh; Paul Wallace, Walter Dow; Dudley Mills, James Darby; Theda Bowsher, Gertrude Becker; Betty Picken, Ada Becker; Nancy Jane Merriman, Jean Darby; Dorothy Riegel, Dr. Blair; Charlotte Moore, Cary Carroll.

TARLTON

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Karshner and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hartman of Columbus and Mr. and Mrs. Meville Karshner of New York were the Sunday guests of Mrs. Mary Hartman and son Charles.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Turner of Circleville visited Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Judy, Tuesday.
